

Stiftung Valentina

A foundation to sponsor intensive medical home care and attendance for seriously ill children, especially for children who are terminally ill with cancer, and for their families.

Valentina Peter was a happy, intelligent girl with a great talent for music. After primary school, she went to Spohn-Gymnasium in Ravensburg, a grammar school for highly talented children with a classical focus. She was just about 12 years old when she was diagnosed with a lethal bone tumour. Nevertheless, she was always cheerful and eager to fight. She accepted the "declaration of war" from the tumour and fought for her life, together with the university hospital of Ulm. Her trust in the department of paediatric oncology of the university hospital as well as her mirth were unwavering until the very end. On 9 April 2016, she died peacefully at the end of her last hospital stay.

Stiftung Valentina

Quite a lot of children – just like Valentina Peter – are afflicted by a severe cancer. Age, sex or parentage do not play a role. The required treatment often goes hand in hand with a long time of suffering for the children (and their families), without a guarantee of survival. Often it is desirable to provide these children with intensive palliative care at home, especially during their last phase of life.

The department of paediatric oncology of the university hospital Ulm has initiated, under the direction of Prof Dr Daniel Steinbach, a project called PalliKJUR, which makes palliative and intensive medical treatment for seriously ill children in rural areas possible.

The team works together with partners in local hospitals. In the district of Ravensburg in the south of Germany this would be the OberschwabenKlinik (OSK).
